Neil Barton finalises for Scottish Hairdresser of the Year

Neil Barton of Neil Barton Hairdressing was named as one of six finalists for Scottish Hairdresser of the Year at the British Hairdressing Awards 2011.

The British Hairdressing Awards, launched in 1984 by Hairdressers Journal International and sponsored by Schwarzkopf Professional, have celebrated and rewarded the best of British hairdressing creativity for 27 years and are renowned internationally as the 'Oscars' of the hairdressing world.

To enter the competition, Neil had to submit eight collection images portraying the trends and styles he predicts will be on trend in 2012 and which fulfil the criteria. The images were judged by industry experts, members of the British Hairdressing Awards Hall of Fame and hair journalists from the most influential, and fashion aware consumer magazines.

"I was delighted when I received the letter telling me I had made it to the finals. This year has been an incredible one for the salon. To be recognised by your peers as being one of the country's leading hairdressers and being involved in the British Hairdressing Awards is both a wonderful feeling and a great achievement."
